site Eastern Townships, Canada

recap A compound near Quebec's Vermont border is reminiscent of a farm, with a central courtyard and four outbuildings. The interior application of materials traditionally used as cladding, like corrugated sheet metal (here painted yellow-gold), subtly recalls being alfresco. "You get the same effect as camping, feeling a part of nature yet protected," explains Tux partner Laurent Guez. —Georgina McWhirter
